

Review of Pharmacy Remuneration and Regulation

There is a great deal of reliable research in to homeopathy, particularly with farm animals, that shows that it works. Additionally, as a consumer I believe that freedom of choice is important and that consumers should be allowed to make their own decisions about what products to use. Thirdly, pharmacies are any easily accessible way for the public to access homeopathic medicine. For these reasons I would ask that both PBS and community pharmacies continue to be allowed to sell homeopathic medicines without restriction.
