

Review of Pharmacy Remuneration and Regulation
#180_BHLF-58KW-N52Z-X

Dear Professor Stephen King

I have just found out that the government is reviewing whether it is in the best interest to the public the sell Homeopathic remedies over the counter at pharmacies.

Firstly I wish to say I have been going round in circles trying to make a response via your online option with no success, so now I am emailing my view which will probably be dismissed because I have not responded in thus far in your boxed system.

Yet again in this world I am amazed at how our rights to choose is being challenged. We might loose the option and or right to choose to buy a natural remedy over the counter.

Twenty years ago I first tried an over the counter homeopathic remedy for migraines while pregnant, as the script I had for migraines was not recommended in pregnancy. I have used this remedy ever since and was very happy to find an alternative to the script I previously used, which would leave me in bed for the day.

Over the last twenty years I have continued to used Homeopathic remedies for myself and my children, to our benefit of better health and wellbeing.

My youngest son has Autism, I am able to give him homeopathic remedies with ease and with great results, whereas if he is required to have a subscribed prescription medicine or other western medication I am forced to wrap him in a towel to try to minimise the fight he will give not to take the medication.

I am currently very great full to be able to go to the chemist and get a homeopathic remedy or other natural remedies for our health and wellbeing.

To remove the freedom to purchase homeopathic remedies over the counter at pharmacies is outrageous!

Tell me why would you take away the option to have the convenience of a natural solution to everyday health care.

This is my first attempt to have my say regarding the governments current review. I will continue to try to submit my views via your unfriendly online service. Why is it that the government can quietly review these sorts of subjects so quietly that the majority of the population is unaware of these issues being reviewed until it is to late to have their say.

Give me the choice to have the option of what I believe is right for me and my family please.

Regards
