I would like to retain the freedom I currently exercise to choose which health care products I purchase for my family at pharmacies.

I am better placed to know what is effective for my health than anyone else. I do not need this decided by administrators who know nothing about me, or my approach to health care.

Homeopathic products are readily available in pharmacies throughout Europe because they are considered safe and the judgment of those who choose to use them, is respected.

Please respect the wishes of the substantial number of Australian citizens who exercise their right to choose reputable, homeopathic products at pharmacies.
